

Employing an Australian Apprentice

What is an Australian Apprenticeship?

- Combines training and paid employment
- May lead to a nationally recognised qualification
- 'Competency based' learning
- Available in a wide range of industries
- Training may be delivered either 'on' or 'off' the job (or both)
- Can be a pathway from school to work

What are the benefits to me?

- Staff will be trained to meet your business needs.
- A range of financial incentives and assistance may apply.
- You get to choose the training provider and how, when and where training is delivered.
- Training achieves nationally recognised qualifications developed by industry.
- Over 1,000 qualifications available to match your requirements.

Visit our website for more Employer Support and Information

How do I recruit?

- Visit the Jobactive website to post an advertisement or to contact a local Jobactive provider.
- Recruit someone you know or who has been recommended to you
- Contact local schools
- Advertise the position in a local paper or on Job Search Sites
- Locate and contact a Service Provider

What are the costs and training needed?

Different Industries has different pay rates and training plans for Apprentices. It is always good to know Wages Information and Training Plans.

Post Recruitment

After contacting and signing up with an Australian Network Provider, you need to successfully manage the Apprentice to fully unlock the full potential of an Apprenticeship.

Information about Apprenticeship management, training plans and contracts can be found here.